

SEES DEMOCRATIC UPSET AS MANDATE TO END CONTROLS

Gov. Edward Martin Says Desire Is For More Economic Government

RAPS INTERFERENCE

Will Follow Ballot-Dictate By Aiding Elimination of OPA

By Suzanne Flick

(U. N. S. Staff Correspondent) HARRISBURG, Nov. 9.—(INS)—Gov. Edward Martin, elected U. S. Senator in the Republican sweep, today viewed the Democratic upset as a mandate to end government controls and extravagance.

The overwhelming vote given GOP candidates indicated electors favor less government and economic government, the chief executive asserted.

The people "do not want governmental interference," he declared, but look for "an opportunity of working out their lives in accord with the American way of life."

The Governor indicated he would follow the ballot-dictate by supporting measures to eliminate OPA and other restrictions, including rent control.

"As far as rent controls are concerned, my mind is open," he said. "However, we must take into consideration that the people will not build homes unless they get returns on their investments."

"The Governor announced he planned to work for more efficiency in government, but would not commit himself to support a Senate reorganization proposal designed to reduce committees.

"I haven't had the opportunity of mastering this new plan," Governor Martin said, "but I favor anything which will speed up legislation."

The Governor said the outcome of his contest, in which he defeated incumbent U. S. Sen. Joseph P. Guffey by a 699,000 margin, led him to believe "the people expect the government to provide fine educational facilities, aid in health and in the conservation of natural resources."

"They are now realizing that the man who works must pay all of the costs of government," he explained. "They're also realizing that the federal debt must be paid if we're to be a free people."

Governor Martin said he had no "pet bills" ready for presentation when Congress convenes in January and added he was "not going to revolutionize" the government.

He emphasized his intention of completing his term of office which expires January 21. The Senate was scheduled to convene January 6th.

Activities of Interest To All in The Various Communities

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

Mr. and Mrs. Ely R. Fretz, "Sunny Side Farm," returned on Saturday evening from a motor trip of more than eight weeks through the western states, which extended to California and other Pacific coast states.

Almost 10,000 miles were covered in this trip, which included 21 states and Mexico, and visits to Indian reservations in Montana and Arizona.

Mr. and Mrs. Fretz also visited friends and relatives en route.

With more pork and beef placed at the disposal of the public, there has been a decided decline in the demand for poultry with the result that there has been a drop in the price of the poultry.

This was shown at the combination sale conducted by the Rice brothers at their property near Solebury, on Tuesday afternoon. During the sale, which was attended by about 700 persons, the prices received for poultry were about 10 cents a pound lower when little beef or pork could be found on the market. The supply of poultry, the sale of which amounted to $2399.73, was quite good, but the bidding was rather slow. Proceeds of the entire sale amounted to $4806.88.

For some reason the sale of pigs was also off. Of the 115 head of brot, only 35 were sold. Seed hogs brought from $30 to $48, shoats from $10 to $20, and small pigs from $3 to $8.50.

The following prices were received for the other livestock: four cows, $56 to $150; four heifers, $33.50 to $50; twenty-one goats, $2.50 to $3.50.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

The Council of Foreign Ministers discussed points in the Italian and Rumanian treaties for almost five hours yesterday, but failed to reach an agreement on any major issue. It adopted a suggestion by Secretary of State Byrnes not to open discussion on the controversial Trieste statute.

The United States delegation to the United Nations was encouraged when the Czechoslovak delegate endorsed its proposal urging all nations "directly concerned" with trusteeship agreements to waive veto rights. The Russian delegate postponed his reply until Monday.

Disregarding Russian objections, a General Assembly committee voted, 7 to 4, to recommend that the Security Council examine anew the applications for membership of Albania, Trans-Jordan, Ireland, Portugal and Outer Mongolia. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, speaking before another committee, said Russia and the United States both must concede "the right of opposition" if they wished to live peacefully together.

Senator Vandenberg said this country was still opposed to shouldering virtually half of the United Nations administrative expense, but emphasized that Washington, regardless of the party in power, would continue to support a mutual defense system against aggression.

Italian Communists instructed their four ministers in Premier Gaspari's coalition Government to work for acceptance of Marshal Tito's offer to relinquish claims to Trieste in exchange for Gorizia. It was believed that this Communist move might upset the Italian Cabinet. Of the 15 other ministers, two Republicans and four Socialists were inclined to support the Communist stand.

The State Department disclosed that an informal United States mission to Albania was returning because of that country's unwillingness to recognize existing treaties with this country. The mission's return was expected to dim all prospects of recognition of the Albanian Government.

The Navy Department announced that United States warships would pay calls late this month and early in December to Turkey, Greece, Lebanon, Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Crete.

The Elections

Washington, Nov. 9. THE election results are so pregnant with meaning and mandates that it is not possible to compress them all within a single column. Accordingly, there will be dealt with today only a few of the more obvious of the causes and effects. These will become apparent just as soon as the Eightieth Congress convenes early in January.

CLEARLY, the New Deal period definitely has ended, the country has turned strongly toward the conservative right, the more dominating of the labor groups, in particular the CIO-PAC, along with such highly radical agitators as the Messrs. Wallace, Pepper and Murray, have been overwhelmed and flattened out. They will squeal and protest, expostulate and explain.

REPUBLICAN PROGRAM

Present indications are that the Republican leaders in the two Houses of Congress are going ahead with their program for the next session with just as much assurance as though there were a friendly President in the White House to support it.

Meetings have been called to talk over the various matters in which the Republicans already are committed, and to seek a united front on the matters which are still open to discussion.

Certain points have been covered so completely in the past that they can virtually be taken for granted. Those in which the Republican position already is clear include questions of national finance.

Prompt steps can be expected for the following:

A. Sharp reduction of national spending.

B. Balancing of the budget at between $20 and $30 billions, compared to the present unbalanced budget of $42 billion.

C. A 20 per cent cut in income taxes, plus the elimination of various "nuisance" taxes.

The question promptly rises, would the President veto such measures? One could almost re-word this, would he dare?

On these three matters, it is hard to see how he could do anything but sign. He has given lip-service to economy, and would be hard put to find plausible reasons for opposing it.

If he did veto such bills, there are more than enough anti-Truman Democrats in the new Congress who would side with the Republicans to override him.

Another major field in which the Republicans already have taken a fairly definite stand is that of labor relations. Something akin to the Case Bill unquestionably will be advanced, together with revision of the Wagner Act. Here again many Democrats will support the proposals.

Calls for Action

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 9.—Directed to apply for a parole at the end of four months sentence in jail and to then leave Pennsylvania, Albert Lee Bethea, 20, colored farm worker on the Starkey Farms near Morrisville, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1, the costs of prosecution and serve not more than 23 months in jail.

"You will be granted a parole on condition that you leave Bucks county and Pennsylvania and never return," Judge Keller said. "We don't want your type in this county."

The defendant, who admitted cutting the throat of Fred D. White August 13, 1943, denied that he was molesting girl workers on a truck which was transporting them from Trenton to Morrisville.

Edith M. Grossie, 16-year-old on the truck, testified the defendant made some improper passes at her. She said White was "calling Bethea down" for his conduct when an altercation began.

"White came toward me with his hand in his pocket and I wasn't taking any chances, so I cut him with my pocket knife," the defendant said. He was discharged from the Navy in 1943.

"We don't stand for that kind of conduct in this part of the country," Judge Keller said. "Up here we use fists instead of knives," Judge Keller added. Two more charges connected with annoying girls could not be pressed because the girls from Trenton did not appear in court.

Two ex-GIs who were AWOL and couldn't obtain draft card ratings to produce when trying to get a job, were sentenced by President Judge Hiram H. Keller, Wednesday, when they pleaded guilty to robbing a Cornwells Heights home in November, 1944.

Pleading guilty to burglary and larceny, Michael A. Forcione, 22, who is now serving from 12 to 24 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1, the costs of prosecution and serve from two and one-half to five years concurrently with the sentence he is now serving.

Percy Reed Miller, 22, of Cumberland, Md., who pleaded guilty to the same charge and is serving from seven to 14 years in the E. S. P., was given the same sentence.

Forcione, a Philadelphia, and Miller became buddies in an Army camp in North Carolina. While on a tour they went AWOL. Unable to qualify for a draft card rating.

THE TB CRUSADE

Rumors current for some time that a new approach to the conquest of tuberculosis was being charted were explained recently when the United States Public Health Service gave its approval to the use of a new tuberculosis vaccine which is described as conferring increased resistance to the disease.

As with all such discoveries, the popular tendency is to overrate its effectiveness. Medical science has by its amazing success in discovering new treatments for diseases raised the hope that it will find a specific remedy for tuberculosis and all other diseases which are difficult to treat.

The new vaccine, BCG, has merely been approved as of some value in reducing the number of cases of tuberculosis. It is neither a preventive nor a cure. It is useful only in areas where diet and sanitary conditions are such as to encourage the spread of tuberculosis. It is of some effect in helping potential sufferers from the disease to reduce their chance of infection.

It may be useful in the 300 United States counties in which the TB death rate is above 75 a year for each 100,000 of population, and in instances where a high rate of infection is recorded because of lack of proper facilities for treatment.

THE SUGAR SHORTAGE

As the sugar shortage continues, with no longer even promises of relief—worthless as these have proved in the past—housewives are becoming more vocal in putting the blame for the acute scarcity of this commodity squarely on the shoulders of the administration at Washington.

In the case of sugar the government has outsmarted itself—a thing that often happens when men delude themselves into thinking they are wise enough to pull the strings of a planned economy.

The blunder, for which Americans are paying with sugarless meals now, was made in dealing with Cuba, on which this country must rely for the bulk of its supplies. The plantations on the island could readily have supplied most of this country's needs. But the men in Washington, intent on price controls, repeated the same error that has created shortages in dozens of other fields. Penny-wise and pound-foolish, they fixed the price too low to bring out maximum Cuban production.

There are, to be sure, other factors which have aggravated the sugar shortage. The lengthy maritime strike hampered the importation of fresh supplies. The misguided refusal of the OPA to permit the shipment of beet sugar stocks in the Middle West to the East Coast, on the ground that this might be construed as a strike-breaking activity, helped intensify the current scarcity.

But the fundamental cause was the manner in which the Cuban deal was bungled. That is what happens when men in charge of government become so fascinated with theories that they cannot see the simplest of economic facts.

For the President to repeat his blunder of vetoing the Case Bill, and turn down new Labor laws when the election was so clearly a mandate for these, would be almost unthinkable. Again, he would face almost certain overruling of such a veto by Congress.

Still another major topic where sentiment already has crystallized is that of de-control. This falls into two headings: first, the wiping out of price, priority and other restrictions on normal economy; and second, the official declaration that the war is over.

The first of these does not offer much room for controversy. Just before the end of the campaign, the President reversed his earlier stand on price and commodity controls, and promised their rapid elimination. He would have to make a still more startling reversal to attempt to stop such de-control now. Aside from a very few matters such as rentals, there is not much division of opinion on the need for a return to free enterprise.

The question of wiping out war-powers by declaring hostilities to be over, however, is quite another matter. There is no question that the President will cling tenaciously to his tremendous emergency authorities. A variety of excuses will be offered why we should go on for several months more pretending the war is still being fought.

On the other hand, it is not likely that the Republicans will see any logic in wiping out all the lesser controls, but permitting the big ones to remain. There is room for compromise on the matter of the exact date when the war will be terminated; but no reason to believe its official end is far off.

The vast power which the war-controls acts give the President is well illustrated in the case of the coal strikes, where the President took over the struck mines when the bargaining between miners and operators moved too slowly to suit him.

However, the same example shows that the war powers alone are not enough to solve such problems; for the miners have been just as eager to talk strikes against the government as against the private owners. Besides, the trend against anything smacking of Socialism is so strong at present that thinly-disguised nationalization of the mines is bound to be less and less popular.

Incidental to the enforced reduction of spending which now is in sight, there is little doubt that the Republicans will force a cut of upwards of 2,000,000 in the Federal payrolls. This is the most obvious single source of economy. Merely dropping the unnecessary public employees would bring the present budget into balance.

For the time being, foreign policy will not be likely to be disturbed. For one thing, no one is sure enough of what it really is to know how to change it; and for another, the fiction that there is a "non-partisan" agreement suits the convenience of both parties. In fact, the only lively criticism of foreign policy just now comes from the minority wing of the Democrats.

The President's position on the various Republican proposals of course remains to be seen. He is going to find it harder to fight them than to go along with them, in all probability.

All of the weapons with which he might fight back have been blunted. His own party is split, and he has the real confidence of neither wing. Moreover, his previous appeals to the American public have fallen on exceedingly deaf ears, and nothing has happened to make his voice any more persuasive.

For him to take a sort of dog-in-the-manger attitude in the matter, and undertake to veto everything which comes to his desk, would be childishly stupid, and would invite new disasters to himself and his followers.

The question of whether a president could be successfully impeached for persistently vetoing measures simply because he was "mad at" Congress was raised during the trial of President Andrew Johnson; and cannot be said ever to have been answered.

It would be asked again, in a hurry, if the President were so unwise as to start on a campaign of pure obstructionism.

All in all, despite the pre-election talk of a "deadlock" if the Republicans won, there is little real reason to doubt that they will be permitted to put into operation the bulk of the program they have in mind.

ris, Th.D.; 6:15 p. m., Junior Christian Endeavor with James Fry in charge; seven p. m., senior and young people's Christian Endeavor societies will meet; eight, evening worship, with sermon by the pastor, continuing study from James Epistle "Respect of Persons."

Dr. Jarvis S. Morris, the morning speaker, is president of the Polytechnic Institute, San German, Puerto Rico. He will speak in the Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour, at 10 a. m.; and in Bristol Presbyterian Church, at 11 a. m.

The Institute is said to be the only Protestant Christian private co-educational institution doing college work in Puerto Rico. Its student body averages 300. Dr. Morris points out that the influence of the evangelical churches has been largely instrumental in building up an interest in education. Forty-five years ago, the population of Puerto Rico was about one million, of whom one in ten could read and write. Now the population has doubled, but literacy has increased eleven times. In recent years the leaders in educational work in town and country, in vocational and academic schools alike, have largely been evangelicals. Dr. Morris is a graduate of Park College, and did graduate work at Princeton, N. J., University and Seminary, where he took the degrees of Bachelor and Master of Theology, and Master of Arts. He had a year's study at the University of Berlin on a fellowship from Princeton, and later took his doctorate in Theology at Union Seminary, New York. Dr. Morris is a contemporary of the Rev. Edward G. Yeomans.

Monday, 7:30 p. m., Boy Scout, No. 2, William Fry, Scoutmaster, will meet in the church, Tuesday.

A Summary of The News

an effort to induce the Communists to take part in the forthcoming Constitutional Assembly. The cease-fire order was rejected, however, by the Communists and the Democratic League.

A new purge of strongly nationalistic elements that may affect about 120,000 office-holders or office-seekers was ordered by the Japanese Government.

When the new Congress meets in January, the Republicans will seek a balanced budget and reduced taxes as a primary objective. They also are expected to offer early in the session legislation to modify the Labor Relations Act.

President Truman met with his top economic advisers and was reported to have decided to drop all controls except those on sugar and rents and possibly rice. Such sweeping action would decontrol wages and coal prices and would permit Secretary of the Interior Krug to tell John L. Lewis and bituminous coal operators to settle their current dispute in their own way.

The Great Game of Politics

But that is what has transpired. And it is no surprise. The incongruous combination which the late Mr. Roosevelt was able to hold together long after its absurdity had become plain at last has gone down the drain. The silly effort to revive its potency with canned platitudes and hysterical eulogies of the dead recording the "golden voice" and President served only to emphasize the collapse.

PUTTING aside the temptation to dilate upon this satisfactory outcome, it seems better first to consider what the Republicans are going to do now. The control of Congress has been achieved. The charge that as a party they have no program and are without effective leadership is not wholly true. There are in the Senate a few left-wing Republicans, such as Senator Wayne Morse, of Oregon, and George Aiken, of Vermont, whose greatest gratification seems to come from being published as "liberal-minded" and "forward-looking." In the new House, too, there will be a similar group.

But, in the main, the Republican majorities will be much less spirited, much better disciplined, much more responsive to their party line than the Democrats. Already a painful beating comes from the journalistic liberals about the "inevitable mess" that must ensue from the legislative branch is controlled by one party and the executive branch in the hands of the other. Confusion of the most horrible sort is forecast. The stale and rather stupid suggestion is advanced by Senator Fulbright, of Arkansas, and echoed by the frustrated and distressed radicals, that having been "repudiated" Mr. Truman should now abdicate. There are several things wrong with this reasoning. For one, the "repudiation" of Mr. Truman was incidental and not important. The real repudiation was of the shadowy policies of his predecessor which Mr. Truman was forced to make his own. The real mess was the one created by fourteen years of wasteful New Dealism, planned economy and labor-leader coddling. For another, it is by no means sure that because of a Democratic President, Republican control of Congress will result in inaction, futility, a stalemate—in brief, a "mess."

THAT situation will not affect the ability of the Republicans effectively to operate along the lines they clearly indicated as desired by the American people. One of these is the reduction in the cost and size of the great Federal machine; the other, adoption of a firm labor policy. If the Republicans fail to function on these, they will have failed to make good their public and oft-repeated promises. Also failure would greatly diminish Republican chances in 1948, which, of course, is the chief concern of every Republican leader, big and little. It certainly would seem in the interests of all Republican aspirants for the presidency to have their party meet the popular desire for action on these two issues.

THAT both can be accomplished is plain. In the matter of cutting expenses and eliminating unnecessary boards and commissions, the Republicans do not have to pass bills over the Truman veto even if there should be a veto. In full control of the purse strings, all they have to do is refuse to appropriate the money, thus starving the boards and commissions to death. That is what will happen with Representative John Taylor, of New York, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, few who know him will doubt.

AS TO a labor policy, the belief is that the Republicans will pass a strengthened Case bill. Should Mr. Truman veto this, as he did last session, the increased Republican membership, plus conservative Democrats, plus shrinkage of the CIO labor bloc, plus enhanced public sentiment, ought to make it possible to override. But it is asked, why should Mr. Truman use his veto to save the CIO leaders from a bill twice passed by Congress and clearly in the interests of the public—why should he do that after the exceedingly convincing demonstration that the CIO leaders are bitterly hostile to him? Of course, there will be vast confusion in the change from one control to the other. But when that has been straightened out, there exists no reason for futility. The self-interest of every Republican is to progress in the direction so clearly indicated by the results. They will be great fools not to do so.

ST. ANN'S TO MEET OLNEY "VETS" IN PHILA. ON SUNDAY

Local Eleven To Face The Strongest Team of The Conference Group

MAY TIE FOR FIRST

Both Teams Are Assured,
However, of Having Play-Off Spots

Seeking their seventh straight conference win, the St. Ann's A. A. eleven will face the strongest team of the conference tomorrow afternoon when it meets "Doc" Mashadre's Olney Vets.

This game will be played as part of a double-headed at the Cambria Stadium, Kensington and Torresdale avenues, Philadelphia, and is scheduled to begin at one o'clock.

Should Olney beat the "Saints" they will be deadlocked for first place, although both are assured of playoff spots. Earlier in the season, the Vets were beaten by Bridesburg but since then have rolled up large scores on opponents.

"Doc" Mashadre's team is studded with several college boys from Ursinus and in addition to these there is "Eddie" Carr, leading scorer of the circuit and former Olney High star. Harry Mallos, Billy Gilbert, and Joe Klock have also been playing good ball for the Olney team.

The Olney team scored a 42-0 win over Cheltenham while St. Ann's barely beat the Chelties, 7-6. In another comparative score, Olney beat Ambler, 32-0, while Ambler scored on St. Ann's and were beaten 26-6.

The "Saints" appear in fine shape for the contest. Coach "Pete" Borrice worked his squad twice this week and feels confident that his boys will retain their winning streak.

Coach Borrice was unable to open up his full bag of tricks in the last few games because Olney scouts were present to take notes of the St. Ann's plays but everything will be thrown at the Vets Sunday in an effort to stay on top in the western division of the loop.

The standing of the western division of the conference is as follows:

Team	Won	Lost	Pts.
St. Ann's	6	0	12
Olney Vets	5	1	10
Chestnut Hill	3	2	6
Cheltenham	3	3	6
Willow Grove	1	4	2
Ambler	0	6	0

NAME OFFICERS FOR BASKETBALL LEAGUE

A meeting of the Bristol Basketball League was held Thursday night and the following officers elected: President, Joseph Diamanti; vice-president, Andy Pfaffentrath; secretary, Daniel DiLorenzo; treasurer, Robert Sutton; league advisor, Thomas Juno.

Seven teams were represented. Two others signified their intention of joining the loop but decision was reserved until tonight.

Boundary line and limits of players and other rules were discussed but nothing definite decided. It was decided to hold another meeting next Wednesday night in the St. Ann's A. A. club-house.

THIRD WARD EAGLES TO PLAY TACONY PANTHERS

Trying for its third consecutive win, the Third Ward Eagles will play the Tacony Panthers tomorrow afternoon on Leedom's field. Opening kickoff will take place at 2:15 o'clock.

Coach Joe Roe's team has strengthened considerably since the opening Bordentown fracas and the acquisition of Morris "Boake" Carter, formerly of LaSalle College, has made the difference between a losing and winning club.

BEGAN SCORING EARLY

Winners Had Eleven First

Made Three

SOUTHAMPTON, Nov. 9—Coach Glenn Miller's Fallsington Falcons beat Claude Lodge's Southampton eleven yesterday afternoon for their third straight victory and fifth win of the campaign. Final score was: Fallsington, 14; Southampton, 6. Earlier in the season, Falls beat Southampton, 6-0.

The Falcons scored early in the tilt. Brown took the opening kickoff on the 35 and ran 39 yards to the Southampton 35. With the line making large holes, the ball was worked to the 12-yard line where a Falls fumble gave Southampton possession of the ball.

However, on the first play, Southampton fumbled and Gene Lynch pounced on the ball to give it back to Fallsington. Line plays scored the touchdown with George Taylor going over. He also hit the line for the extra point.

The second touchdown was registered in the third session. The drive started on the Falls' 35 and with the Taylor brothers alternating in carrying the ball, they reached the 3-yard line where "Bottles" Taylor scored. George Taylor again hit the line for the extra point.

With a 14-0 lead in the final period, Coach Miller yanked most of his first-stringers to give his younger boys a chance. Southampton scored on a pass and failed in the extra point try.

The winners had 11 first downs while Southampton had three, one via line plays and two by passes. LeRoy Lynch was the principal ground-gainer ripping off some nice runs of 10 to 15 yards.
